1. Positive aspects of the film you would like to mention

- Dialogue was some of the most natural of any Aust film.
- Truly important Aust. film that is different from the usual forced quirky pulp that tends to be produced.
- Last supper – excellent. Perhaps iconic?

2. Negative aspects of the film you would like to mention

- The names are a bit jumbled at beginning – too many names in short space
- The moral dilemma could have been emphasised a bit more
- Perhaps two minutes on dinner party to illustrate a period where there was a common place or normative reporter at table.

1. Positive aspects of the film you would like to mention

Some foggy scenes of Canberra Angela's acting
Good location choices

2. Negative aspects of the film you would like to mention

Opening & final hide and seek sequence

Please cut the Braddon Mandalay scenes -> they are unnecessary for the storyline and are cliched, badly acted and distasteful with no resonance to speak of there is no need for the 12 months later intro either historic sequences are obvious

1. Positive aspects of the film you would like to mention

Loved Freddie's comic relief the final scene. In this version I found the start of the movie not as dragged out - alot more easier to follow. Liked Fred's reflection scene before the dinner party - showed his vulnerability.

2. Negative aspects of the film you would like to mention

In places it seemed rather dumb (but I'm sure this is a fixable aspect).
I really can't find much fault (and no, I'm not blowing smoke up your ass!) great flick.

3. Sum up the film 'The Dinner Party' in one sentence
